Cultural Competency: A Framework for Increasing Cultural Responsiveness

Enjoy an interactive workshop and conversation about cultural competency. Consider the latest research, the methods of study and the practical ways professionals improve the practice of cultural competency in day to day interactions. This workshop is appropriate for professionals in education, mental health, medicine and any business setting.

Friday, July 18, 2014 – Margaret Cook, M.Ed., L.P.C.

Ther-APP-y

Explore the use of technology within the therapeutic relationship. Learn to use technology to help clients improve, change and track progress. This fast pace session will look at some of the best apps, services and ideas for incorporating technology in healthy/productive therapeutic interactions.

Friday, August 1, 2014 – Margaret Cook, M.Ed., L.P.C.

Empowering Parents and Extending Family Therapy Success

Use parent training as a component of family therapy. Children and families often enter into the therapeutic relationship and need additional support for parenting skills outside of therapy. Consider developing parenting communities and using resources that help families maximize the benefit of therapy.

Saturday, August 23, 2014 – Margaret Cook, M.Ed., L.P.C.

Telling the Story

Using story/narrative for developing coping skills in families and for clients who are facing end of life issues. This session is appropriate for therapists, hospice workers, medical professionals, caregivers and religious leaders. The session will also provide general information about preserving the stories in a format suitable for archival and/or publication.

All sessions 1 – 3 p.m. $55.00 per session.
Discount rate $50.00 if registered before May 30, 2014.
Certificate of attendance provided. Register today: space is limited to allow maximum interaction with the facilitator.
